LARKFIELD. COMPLIANCE MEMO, Q3 2026. Fictional business, invented for testing. This memo is my own record of what we did and why we thought so at the time. It is not a statement of the law. Where this memo and the rules pack pull different ways, the rules pack is what binds us and this memo is only what we did.

1. WHAT WE SELL AND WHERE. Larkfield sells subscription software to consumers, plus one plan we sell to businesses. The plan matrix has every plan, its term, its price, its trial, how people sign up, how they cancel and what the cancel flow shows them. The distribution export has where the subscribers are. The cancel method is disclosed at signup on every plan, online and on the phone.

2. THE RENEWAL RUN. Q4 renewals start on 1 October 2026. The last release we can get a flow change or a notice change into before that is Monday 24 August 2026. Anything we do not catch now ships in January.

3. WHAT WE DID IN AUGUST 2025. The federal rule that required us to make cancelling as easy as signing up was vacated on 8 July 2025, in its entirety. In August 2025 we relaxed Larkfield Studio Annual so that cancellation is online only, even though we take signups on that plan online and over the phone. Nobody has looked at it since.

4. LARKFIELD TEAMS. Teams is our business plan. We sell it to businesses for their own business use and we treat it as exempt from consumer auto renewal law, so it gets no renewal notices and it is not in the notice log. That is how it has been set up since launch and nobody has re-opened it.

5. LARKFIELD VOICE. Voice is sold over the phone by our inbound sales team and nowhere else. We cleared it under ORDA on 19 March 2026 and closed it out. It gets no renewal notices.

6. THE SAVE OFFER. Growth added a retention offer to the Larkfield Plus Annual cancel flow on 8 June 2026. Delia Marchetti owns it. It is a 40% off three months offer that takes the whole screen when someone starts to cancel, and the cancel option is on the screen after it. Nobody from our side reviewed it before it went live. Ravi Chandrasekar owns the older offer on Larkfield Studio Monthly, which keeps the cancel button on the same screen next to the offer the whole way through.

7. WHO SIGNS. Yusuf Adeyemi signs the quarterly audit off. Nothing goes to growth, and no flow changes, without him.

8. WHAT WAS LEFT OPEN LAST QUARTER. Five things, and I want a line on each of them this quarter.

(a) The Prenotification Plan Rule came back in force on 12 February 2026 and nobody has re-reviewed a single plan against it. This is the top of the list.

(b) The rulemaker published an advance notice on 11 March 2026. I think we should be building to it now rather than scrambling later, and I want to know what we are building.

(c) We relaxed Studio Annual's cancellation in August 2025 once the federal rule went away. Is that still fine?

(d) Growth's save offer went live on 8 June and nobody from our side looked at it.

(e) The fifty state survey signed off on 12 May 2026. Delia keeps asking whether we are covered and I keep saying yes.
